Looking around further, we saw Ron Ayer running an electric train around the porch. This does not seem unusual since Ronnie is now a famous engineer and author. His latest book "What I Know That Einstein Didn't" has hit the best seller list. He has also gone far in the field of music. He is the only living person who can sing three part harmony.

Pretty soon, we saw Maynard "Punky" Davis running across the lawn to meet us. Punky told us all about his daily column in the "Livingston Manor Times" called "Advice to the Lovelorn". Letters for advice pour in daily and "Punky" is kept busy answering them all.

Upon hearing a terrific explosion we rushed back into the dining room. We were surprised to see that it was only the arrival of Larry "Two Gun" Shaver, who is now a big oil tycoon in Turnwood. We knew he was rich but we didn't expect to see him lighting his cigar with a thousand dollar bill. Larry still talks about "the old wreck-of-a-Dodge" he had when he was in high school. Since then he has owned four Cadillacs, two Buicks and has finally come up with his own model called the "Shaverette". Larry is still the big Romeo that he was in his high school days. In fact, the women around town still refer to him as "Lover Boy."

Mary Smith and her husband took time out from their newly-opened aquatic school at Beech Mountain to come down tonight. They could not find a baby sitter so the little Ryders had to come along.

Accompanying Larry, were Aaron Ward and his wife, the former Dede Peterson. Aaron and his brother, Art, are now partners and own a chain of garbage trucks operating all over New York State. Aaron and Dede are now living in the Quick mansion on DuBois street. The reason for their move is that they need the room to house their kids. Aaron has carried out the family tradition by giving all his kids names starting with A-- Archimedes, Aristotle, Arpheus, Alicia, Alexis and Agememnon.

Our eyes were blinded by a sight in the doorway. As we look closer, we behold Johannes Hurbanek, dressed in a bright purple suit, red tie, yellow shoes and a pink shirt. Joe likes to draw attention to himself in order to advertise his flourishing establishment "THE HOME BREW INN" formerly known as "CARLSON'S BAR & GRILL".

Two of Joe's admirers were Marie and Peg Rudolph, who were dressed in nurses uniforms. Since graduation they have been nursing in Loomis Hospital, and at times they help Lou in her dog clinic.

Over by the swimming pool, we found Bill Hendrickson and his wife, the former Caryl Hutchens, talking to another group of people. Bill is now a basketball referee in the Western Sullivan League, since the comeback of "Foxy" Knoll. In his spare time, Bill joined the original "Corn Squeezers" on WVOS with Ben Gabus. Bill has taken the place of Fran DeVoe as jug blower and is getting pretty good.

Don Wamsley, since graduation, has been named the "Don Juan" of Livingston Manor. In the last ten years, Don has been engaged to ten different women, but at the last moment, Don always decided against taking the crucial step.

Don and Margo Hill were not able to be with us tonight. Don is is a busy man lately and tonight he is pitching an important game with the Boston Red Sox. In the off season, he plays basketball with the "Milwaukee Brewers". He is so good that he doesn't need spring or fall training.

Doris Cotton and her "Mystery man" were seated in a corner by themselves. Since graduating from Oneonta State, she has been teaching kindergarten in Callicoon and is trying to get a position in L. M. C. S.

At the next table were Geraldine Clapper and her husband, George Marshall. Geraldine is now leading a quiet domestic life at home and is occupied with caring for George Jr.

Also present was the ever faithful Bill Daubek who is now acting as chief waiter and chef at the "Hash House." Believe it or not, Bill has been through college and his book "Ten Easy Ways to Study English" has become popular in high schools all over the United States.

Ben Gabus is strumming "Run for the Round-house, Nellie," the rally cry of the class of '52 and that means the festivities must of necessity come to an end. We must say our good-byes, yoke up the oxen and head for our beloved hills.

Signed: Mary Smith
Doris Cotton

Prophecy

WHEN we graduated from High School in June, 1952, we agreed to meet ten years later on the evening of the anniversary of our class graduation for a class reunion.

Well, the appointed night finally arrived and since we were so anxious to get there, we all arrived early at Brannigan's Hash House in Shandelee, New York. James Patrick Brannigan, proprietor of the famous Hash House, formerly the Waldemere Hotel, greeted us at the door and ushered us into the dining room. Jimmy is doing a successful business, but he complains that he never has enough to do. So on the side, Jimmy takes on little, odd jobs like wrestling, boxing and bookie work behind the meat counter.

On entering the dining room, the first one we saw was "Big" Fran DeVoe, seated at a table and surrounded by ardent listeners. As we edged closer, we heard Fran recounting his last days as a basketball player for dear, old L. M. C. S. He was telling all about the points he made against Jeff with Tom Festa guarding him. Fran is now physical education director at the Manor, after the retirement of Mr. Henry Paul. He is reported to be a very strict disciplinarian, especially in the matter of smoking during training.

As we glanced around, we saw Harriete and Jack Hoag seated in a corner by themselves. "Hat" had a hard time getting a baby sitter for the twins, but she and Jack finally managed to be present. After graduating from high school, "Hat" settled down to domestic life and wrote letters to Jack in the Navy while taking care of the kids, Larry and Bob. Now that Jack is out of the Navy, all is peaceful.

Lou Lyman, the famous scientist, was seated at a table looking well dressed. We guessed right away that her financial success came not only from her scientific ventures, but from the fact that she was Treasurer of the Class of '52. Lou and her husband have now taken over the Rockland Lumber and Coal Co. and have converted it into a clinic for sick dogs.

As we looked around, we saw Nancy Benton walk in the door with her boss, Mr. Irving R. Avery. Nancy's husband, Sylvester, had to stay home and take care of Junior. Nancy is now head stenographer in the Avery Loan Corporation and is doing very well for herself.

Frank "Parson" Wells could be heard well above the noise of the crowd. Mounted upon a soap box in the middle of the floor, he was ranting and raving about the evils of drink and profanity. Parson now owns a famous gun factory in Grooville, New York. His most successful project is the "Trajectory Gun", a gun which shoots over mountains and kills deer in the next valley.

William Smith, formerly known as "Willy", was seated at a table with a lot of famous people. Willy's fame has spread far and wide for he is now Editor-in-Chief of "Mesquire", the man's magazine. Since he was always a woman hater and wanted to do as little as possible, this job came as quite a surprise to all of us.

We decided to stroll around and see the rest of our classmates. Seated on the veranda steps were Dr. and Mrs. D'Amico. Paul is a very busy young doctor nowadays. He has spent extensive study on the alcoholic and is keeping the local druggists busy filling prescriptions, all of which contain the important ingredient, rum. His prescriptions are very popular, for Dr. D'Amico thinks that rum can cure almost any illness.

We hurried across the porch to talk to Jim Green who was sleeping in a deck chair. Even though Jimmy is now the General Manager of the Manor Poultry Corporation, he still doesn't get enough sleep. Occasionally he is invited back to L. M. C. S. to make one of his speeches about "The Importance of Study and Hard Work in High School."

Bill Hendrickson leaves Livingston Manor Central School to all unfortunate undergraduates.

Paul D'Amico leaves to Earl Gorr his nice, even temper in hopes that he will learn a little self-control in crucial moments.

Geraldine Clapper leaves to Nancy Dayton the secret of having naturally blond hair.

Frannie DeVoe wishes to divide his bowling skill between Donna Schwartz and Barbara Sarles.

Ronnie Ayer leaves to Larry Smith his intellectual ability and ambition to get ahead.

To Miss Dice and Mr. Avery, the Senior Class extends their heartiest thanks for all their help and also for the nonsense they had to endure.

We therefore subscribe our names hereunto, and do declare that these are to the best of our knowledge and ability, the wishes of the Class of 1952. Signed and sealed this 1st. day of February in the year of our Lord 1952.

Class Will

WE, the Mountain William Class of 1952, before leaving the sacred halls of Livingston Manor Central School to seek our fame and fortune among those not of our kith and kin, being of as sound mind as possible after four years of trials and tribulations as well as pathways strewn with roses do hereby declare this: our last will and testament --

To Shirley Green, Doris Cotton leaves her talent for getting along with Mr. Welter.

Jimmy Brannigan wills his well-known laugh to Kurt Paul.

To Jimmy Rose, Don Hill leaves his skill in playing basketball.

Marie Rudolph wishes to leave Honey Turner the alarm clock that was willed to her a couple of years ago. She sincerely wishes Honey good luck for getting to school on time at least once next year.

To Dolly Ward, Harriette Sarles leaves a book entitled "The Art of Clinging to Your Own Man".

Peggy Rudolph gives to Iris Jacobs a roll of adhesive tape. Peggy is sure Iris will know what to do with it.

To Eleanor Hyzer and Evelyn DeWitt, Lou Lyman bequeaths a book entitled "How to Be a Good Loser". Her advice to them is, "Be sure to read this book, girls."

Bill Daubek leaves his folder of English Compositions to Glen Parks, but he advises him not to copy them. They are to be used only for reference and research.

To Ray Cotton, "Willy" Smith leaves his ability to blush at the right moment.

Don Wamsley bequeaths his role of Romeo to Jimmy Ayer.

To Tommy Olsen, Johannes Hurbanek leaves his interest in girls with the hope that Tommy will be more successful in the "field" than he has been.

Mary Smith leaves to anyone lucky enough to acquire it, her spot on the Varsity cheerleading squad.

To Don Colapinto, Maynard Davis leaves his shyness.

Aaron Ward leaves to Arthur Fuller his prize possession, a book entitled "Spelling Mastered in Ten Easy Lessons."

To anyone wishing to make a fast exit, Larry Shaver leaves his car.

Frank Wells leaves his ability to argue to Louie Kannegiser.

Nancy Benton leaves to Jean Conklin all her many typing jobs.

Our first social endeavor for the year was another "Sadie Hawkin's" Dance, which drew our many friends of last year and also new ones. Everyone enjoyed it and our efforts were well worthwhile.

We were now scheduled for a three-act play. Since our former one was so successful we looked forward to greater glory. The play chosen was called "We Shook The Family Tree." The scenery for this play was superb. It was painted in a pattern to make it look like some exquisite wallpaper. The acting also was perfect and thus another success was added to our venture.

Finally the most important event of our high school careers approached. With much excitement we prepared the auditorium for our Junior Prom. It was set up to look like a Paris "Sidewalk Cafe." How beautiful it was ! That night with soft music filling the room we beheld a spectacle never to leave our minds. Mary Smith and Larry Shaver, with the prom attendants, came gliding across the room to take their places on the throne and to receive the honor of being crowned King and Queen by the former King and Queen, Vincent Munhall and Margaret Owen. They came down from the throne and all started to dance.

As seniors we hailed our last year of high school. Mr. Avery, who faithfully stood by us in our past years, was again our homeroom teacher and advisor. Our class was saddened by the departure of Miss Groden and nine classmates, some of whom left for the service, others for the state of wedded bliss. Miss Dice now became our assistant advisor. Larry Shaver was elected president with William Smith as vice-president. Having smaller numbers, we had to work all the harder. However, we successfully put on another three-act play called "Almost Summer." We also had another "Sadie Hawkin's" Dance and we produced a yearbook. Finally we raised enough money to go to Washington, D. C.

Class History

BUBBLING over with anxiety and renewed in strength, we, The Class of 1952, exuberantly entered our Freshman year. Ronald Ayer was elected president, and Doris Sherwood vice-president of the class. Mr. Avery, who was to spark us to success, became our homeroom teacher and advisor.

Soon Hallowe'en came and we earnestly strove to make our concessions a success. They were the Bug Game, Ring Toss and the Pumpkin Pitch. We ended our Freshman year with a wonderful picnic at Beaverkill, and looked forward to more fruitful years ahead.

With our minds refreshed and bodies invigorated during the summer vacation, we eagerly started another school session as Sophomores. Mr. Avery was on hand to welcome us back, and to our delight we learned he would again be our homeroom teacher and advisor. Elections soon showed that William Smith was president and Shirley Griffin vice-president.

Hallowe'en came and again we made a booming success of our concessions. Wanting to make up an assembly without precedent, we decided to put on a play. The one-act play decided upon was called "The City Slicker and Our Nell."

With rising spirits we tackled our next important activity which was a "Sadie Hawkin's" Dance. This is an informal dance, unique in that the girls ask the boys to glide around the floor. Rightfully proud of these successes we now chose red and gold as our class colors along with a most appropriate motto, "Beaten Paths are for Beaten Men."

Mr. Avery and our familiar classroom once again greeted us in our Junior year.

Starting the year off right, we elected William Smith president with Lou Lyman vice-president. Mary Smith became secretary for the third consecutive year. Our new members Doris Cotton, Don Hill and Marie and Peggy Rudolph were gladly received by our class. We had plenty of work ahead and Miss Groden also came to our aid as assistant advisor. When Hallowe'en came around, our concessions, the Dart Game, Phantom Passages, and Spill the Milk, again fulfilled our expectations.

EDITORIAL

"BEATEN paths are for beaten men" goes the age-old adage, and we consistently follow those well-worn paths. We are not yet beaten, so why do we follow these paths? The probable reason is that they are the lines of least resistance--the easiest and the fastest approaches to a so-called "happiness".

Many times during our school years, we have done things only because, "Everybody else is doing them." Yet one person among those we knew had to experience the ordeal of being ridiculed and laughed at so that what he was fighting for would become a reality.

We must realize that conditions have changed. Customs and superstitions were discarded long ago, but there are still those who tread those beaten paths. We cannot solve problems these days according to the shape of the moon nor the tide of the sea. New and modern approaches to our problems are necessary.

Each of us must have the will to be different from the majority--to be an individualist and to stand on one's own two feet. We must learn to adhere to and practice our beliefs. We must keep believing in what we think is right because only by such conviction can we keep that faith.

Let each of us develop our foresight, for we must learn to look to the future and its challenges rather than to the past with its successes and failures.

It is important that we, ourselves, strive to find the answers to our problems rather than to expect others to do it for us, for how better can we learn than by experience? When we complete our formal education, most of us will leave home and will be on our own. We will have to decide our own problems in our own way. Whether to do things the way others are doing them, or to do them the way we think best will be the test of our individuality.

In our efforts for success let us not be afraid to take the more difficult approach, which may be the unbeaten path; let us turn aside from the beaten paths of beaten men.

Dedication

TO Mr. Irving R. Avery we dedicate our 1952 edition of MANORISMS. We wish to express our sincere appreciation for the personal interest he has taken in each of us and in our problems. Words are inadequate to properly thank him for being our good teacher, advisor, and friend.
